ABSTRACT

Primarily a guide to the collections of the University of Pennsylvania Libraries, this bibliography lists titles of 671 reference sources on South Asia by type of reference, with geographic and subject subdivisions. The comprehensive list includes general bibliographies, bibliographies of bibliographies, national and special bibliographies, library catalogs, dissertations, periodical directories, indexes and abstracts, biographical information sources, dictionaries, encyclopedias, handbooks, general and statistical information, maps and atlases, and films. Most entries are for publications in English, but a few works in other European languages are included. Call numbers, annotations, and an author-title-subject index are provided. (Author/CWM)

Preface

Reference Sources on South Asia is intended primarily as a guide to the collections of the University of Pennsylvania Libraries. Call number and location are indicated for the convenience of the users. In a few cases, no call number was available because the book was either in process or on order. Entries conform in style to the university library catalog. Brief annotations are provided where these are considered desirable.

The selection is restricted to monographs, except for a few very useful bibliographies that were published in journals or formed parts of discursive works. Also included are a few bibliographical essays and guides to the use of the India Office Library, the Parliamentary Papers, and Government of India publications. Some major, general reference works, such as the Union List of Serials and the Dictionary of National Biography, are listed because of their usefulness to South Asianists. Most of the reference works are in English and a few in other European languages. Language dictionaries and manuscript catalogs have been excluded, though bibliographies of dictionaries and major union catalogs, such as Aufrecht's Catalogus Catalogorum, have been listed.

This is an updated and expanded version of the bibliography, which first appeared in 1974. It is planned to bring out revised editions from time to time.

My thanks go to Richard De Gennaro, Director of the University of Pennsylvania Libraries, and Bernard J. Ford, Associate Director, for their encouragement and support. I am grateful to Dr. Ludo Rocher and Dr. Franklin C. Southworth, for making possible the publication of this bibliography. Dr. Erle Leichty, Professor of Assyriology, was generous in allowing the use of the Electro/Set for typesetting the manuscript. Mrs. Natalie Terrell and Mrs. Ann K. Guinan deserve special mention for their patience in typing the master tape.
